Professor Dr. Anis Safura Ramli embarked on her academic career as a Senior Lecturer at UiTM in 2005. She was the Head of Primary Care Medicine Department from 2005 - 2015. Under her leadership, the Department has successfully put together the curriculum, teaching and clinical service infrastructure for the undergraduate and postgraduate programmes in primary care. She was promoted to Associate Professor in 2010 and to Professor in 2017. Her contributions to UiTM were recognized with the Excellence Service Award in 2006, 2011 and 2013, followed by the Deputy Vice Chancellor (Research & Innovation) Excellence Award in 2022. She was chosen to represent Malaysia as a Young Physician Leader in a leadership training and networking program in Berlin, Germany (2011) and Geneva, Switzerland (2016), organized by the Inter-Academy Partnership for Health. Her leadership positions also included Deputy Director & Principal Fellow of I-PPERFORM (2017-2023) and currently, Deputy Dean for Research and Innovation at the Faculty of Medicine, UiTM.

Professor Dr. Anis Safura Ramli is a prominent member of her profession, having served on the councils of the Family Medicine Specialists Association, the Academy of Family Physicians of Malaysia and the Malaysian Society of Hypertension. The Ministry of Health Malaysia has recognized her expertise by appointing her as an expert panel on primary healthcare system transformation and the Governance, Monitoring and Evaluation Committee. She is a prolific researcher in cardiovascular disease prevention and risk management, demonstrated by her publications of over 65 scientific research papers, Scopus h-index of 20 and Web of Science h-index of 14. She has extensive experience leading research teams for both national and international grants, and has established an international research collaboration with the University of Nottingham, UK. Her work has been recognized with awards including the UiTM Best Researcher Award at AAU 2020 and the Gold Medal Award at ITEX 2021. The recognition of her expertise is also reflected in her invitations to deliver plenary and symposium lectures at national and international conferences.
